American Vote on Best 1934
Picture

BARRETT'S ON TOP

A poll taken among 424 American film critics has resulted in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" (Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer) being voted the best picture of 1934.

The runners-up were:—
"The House of Rothschild" (United Artists.)
"It Happened One Night" (Columbia.)
"One Night of Love" (Columbia.)
"Little Women" (Radio.)
"The Thin Man" (M.G.M.)
"Viva Villa" (M.G.M.)
"Dinner at Eight" (M.G.M.)
"The Count of Monte Cristo" (United Artists.)
"Berkeley Square" (Fox.)

It will be noticed that not a single British film appears in the list, though only the other day the British "Man of Aran" won the prize awarded by the American National Board of Review for motion pictures for the best film of the year, and four other European pictures were voted upon as well as ten American works.

MARIA MARTEN THRILLER

"Maria Marten, or the Murder in the Red Barn," is to be produced by George King at the Sound City Studios, Shepperton.

He has acquired the services of Milton Rosmer, the Gaumont-British director, for the picture, and the cast includes Tod Slaughter, who has for many years played in the stage play of the same name. Other members of the cast are Sophie Stewart, Clare Greet and Ann Trevor.

Although famous as a theatrical drama, and also lately having been broadcast by the B.B.C., the story of Maria Marten is definitely founded on fact, and it is recorded that the murderer was the last man to be publicly hanged in Bury St. Edmunds—in 1820.

RENE CLAIR TO DIRECT LAUGHTON

Charles Laughton is under contract to London Films, and one of the first films he will make is an original story called "Sir Tristram Goes West."

Rene Clair, the young French director, will direct this film.

It is an unusual theme, and shows how, when some rich Americans ship an entire mediaeval English mansion to America, they unwittingly ship it with the family ghost, Sir Tristram. The film deals with the adventures of this benevolent ghost in America.

LORETTA YOUNG BORROWED

Loretta Young has been borrowed by Paramount for the leading role in Cecil B. De Mille's next spectacle, "The Crusades."

Leading male roles have already been given to Henry Wilcoxon, C. Aubrey Smith, Ian Keith, and Sir Guy Standing.

SCOTSMAN'S SUCCESS

Arthur Woods, the director of "Radio Parade of 1935," has been assigned the job of directing "Drako" for B.I.P.

Arthur Woods is a young Scotsman who has been through every branch of film production, and was given his first job of directing, which was "On Secret Service," early last year. Following that he was given the musical picture "Give Her a Ring" to direct. "Radio Parade" was only his third production.

COAT LAPELS

Colour Facings On
New Collars

WITH TARTAN EFFECT

The lapels of coats are becoming important. This is an example of the coloured facings which are popular, a tartan effect being obtained by the use of silk patterned in cream, burnt orange, and brown. The hat repeats the idea.

CELERY SOUP

THE ingredients for this delicious winter soup are:—one quart white stock (made from a knuckle of veal the previous day), one large head of celery, one ounce butter, three-quarter ounce of flour, quarter pint cream, pepper and salt to taste.

Put the stalks of celery into a basin of cold, salted water, and clean them well, scraping away any discoloured portions.

Cut all the white part into small pieces (the coarser, green parts will flavour broth another day), boil them in the stock until tender, then rub through a fine sieve. Put the butter into a saucepan, mix the flour with it as it melts, add the stock gradually, and season. Boil up, and pour over the cream in a tureen.

Matheson Lang is to star as "Drake" in the new picture.

WENDY BARRIE

Wendy Barrie, the young British actress, has been signed by Paramount to a long-term contract. She will soon start on her first film for the company.

Wendy Barrie was born in Hongkong and educated in Switzerland. After finishing her schooling she came to England, was "discovered" by a film director, and played her first part in "Wedding Rehearsal." She rapidly built up a name for herself on the screen, playing in "Happy Go Lucky" and two Paramount-British films, "Cash" and "The Barton Mystery."

RAY NOBLE IN HOLLYWOOD

Ray Noble, the London composer and arranger, is hard at work in Hollywood on his Paramount contract.

He is writing songs for Bing Crosby, Lanny Ross, and others, and some of his first work will be heard in Claudette Colbert's starring picture, "The Gilded Lily."

ANOTHER "RAMONA"

The famous romance, "Ramona," is to be made by Fox.

A silent version was made in 1916 by Mary Pickford and Henry B. Walthall, and again six years ago by Warner Baxter and Dolores Del Rio. Players for the new Fox production have not yet been selected.

Slaves To Rich Man's Fancies

MEN WHO WORK
UNDERGROUND

CHAMPIGNONS
A LA CREME

Paris.
Creamed mushrooms are international, but champignons-a-la-creme are French.

And thereby hangs a tale of several hundred horses and men, of ghosts riding bicycles in an eternal night, of mystic chemical doings far under the ground, of secret paths in the ancient forest of St. Germain.

If you know the way, you come to a cliff overgrown with mosses and long grasses and shrubbery at the base of which gapes a black, rectangular hole. The debris of a one-time quarry can be recognized about by the expert eye.

This is not Merlin's cave, but the main entrance to a factory. Or better, to twenty kilometres of catacombs wherein thousands, millions, billions of future Champignons-a-la-creme are puffing out their white little shapes in chalky, nitric cradles.

Four-score mushroom-nurses move in the twilight, some with the aid of lanterns, others more used to their business, with the occasional help of a match. In a constant temperature of 50 to 60 fahrenheit, some of these martyrs to the rich man's table have been working under the earth since the eighty-year-old quarry was converted into a mushroom nursery seven years ago.

Some of them are so familiar with every twist and turn of the catacombs that they get along on bicycles. In any case, it is pretty soft underfoot: for almost anything you can touch, it is not a mushroom, is part of 700 tons of fertilizer which is brought to the nursery of Carriere-sous-Bois every month.

BARRACKS INDUSTRY

The manure is supplied, for the carting away of it, by some two thousand horses in the barracks of the Garde Mobile on the capital's outskirts, and by the Garde Republique barracks in Paris itself, comprising 7,000 to 8,000 horses.

Spies from Carriere-sous-Bois see that no undesirable matter, such as old rags, gets into the straw. And that is one reason why the Parisian cavalry horse always has a bed of the best straw. It is the law of cause and effect.

Anyway the manure is piled up three feet deep in underground bins and treated with chemicals until it is sterilised, almost lily-white glucose and warm enough to steam.

Then it is put down in long white strips in the twilight and mushroom chips are inserted at regular intervals. Nitrate and patience do the rest.

But what of the ammoniac fumes which should be sufficient to kill all the horses and men of the Garde Mobile and Republique?

Exit from the catacombs explains: A large ventilating plant, as modern as the subterranean seem old-fashioned, keeps the air circulating and affords, with an elevator, a quick, welcome getaway from the land of champignons.—United Press.

WHEN A ROYAL PRINCESS DECLINES TO SMILE

Despite the fact that she had just heard the Royal Choral Society's concert of Christmas carols in the Royal Albert Hall, London, little Princess Elizabeth, who attended the concert with her mother, the Duchess of York and her sister, Princess Margaret Rose, apparently was displeased about something. She forgot her customary smile when the photographer snapped the above picture. This is one of the few photographs which show the princess in anything but a smiling mood.

HER FAT WAS A BURDEN

Now She is Quite Slender

Here is another case where the trim, slim figure of youth has displaced the coarse, fat outline of middle-age. It is a housekeeper writing. She says:—

"I cannot say what weight I was, but I was very fat—a burden to myself. I have taken three bottles of Kruschen Salts and now I am quite slender. I am 56 turned and people take me for 40. I am more than proud of myself. You can take it from me that every word of this is true. I took a teaspoonful in hot water every morning till I used three bottles. Now I only take half a teaspoonful each morning. I cannot recommend the Kruschen Salts enough, for they are worth their weight in gold."—(Mrs.) A. H.

Kruschen is a scientific combination of six different mineral salts. These Salts combat the cause of fat by assisting the internal organs to perform their functions properly—to throw off each day those waste products and poisons which, if allowed to accumulate, will be converted by the body's chemistry into fatty tissue.

area. They flew very low and made off after taking observation for fifteen minutes.

According to another report, a part of the Japanese troops still delay their evacuation of Chiang-liang and Wunchei within Kuyuen.—Central News Agency.

SLUM CLEARANCE ISSUES

If Hongkong ever decides to initiate a slum clearance movement, for which, indeed, there would be every justification, there is little doubt that the question of compensation to owners would be raised by the interests affected. At Home just now, this issue is giving rise to a good deal of controversy, and pleas are being heard in all parts of the country for removal of the hardships said to be involved in the Government's handling of the problem. It is to be noted that the Act making provision for slum clearance not only contains no provision for compensation, but the owner has to clear the site of a condemned house at his own expense and is not permitted to rebuild unless certain conditions are complied with as to the type of the new property. In some cases, if the area is considered unsuitable, no new house may be erected at all. The Government attitude on the general question of compensation is that a slum is defined as a house unfit for human habitation; and, as such, possesses no value; therefore, there can be no question of compensation. Against that fact, however, critics of the Government policy assert that slum property is given a definite value when assessed for the purpose of death duties. The Government does not contest the general principle that it is an injustice to take anything from anybody without compensation, but as regards slums it holds that houses were made to be lived in, and immediately they are not fit for that purpose, their owners have no right to expect compensation when the property is condemned. Another aspect of the question, as it affects tenants, is that there is small likelihood of the rentals of new houses built to replace the old being anything like as low as those paid by slum occupants, but there are hopes expressed that the Government may be able to do something in the way of subsidies to overcome this difficulty. The main point which emerges from the existing slum policy is that slum areas have to be wiped out, and it seems inevitable that in the process some hardships are bound to arise. The fact cannot be denied that much of the existing slum property is farmed out and has returned its capital value over and over again. At the same time, there are instances in which people have put the whole of their savings into the acquisition of a small house for their

NOTES OF THE DAY

THE GOLD BLOC

Seven European nations have formed a "gold bloc." They are resolved to maintain the gold standard, believing that when the present monetary experiments have come to an end, the world will be grateful to them. Since with two exceptions the members of this group themselves previously abandoned the gold standard and depreciated their currencies very considerably, their stand seems based not so much on loyalty to the gold-standard doctrine as on economic expediency. At present the members of the group—Belgium, Luxembourg, France, Italy, Holland, Poland and Switzerland—are more or less freely convertible into gold. The emphasis is on "less." Their convertibility is extremely relative. They have been endeavouring to reach economic agreements. If they can work together, it will be easier for them to keep the value of their currencies unchanged. Great pressure is exercised upon them by the economic competition of states which have more recently devalued their currencies and who therefore possess trading advantages over the states in which stabilization has brought wages and rents and prices up to higher levels. Unless the "gold bloc" states can adjust to some extent their commercial exchanges, they may be forced, sooner or later, to abandon gold. If they can find sufficient compensation among themselves, the solidarity of these European nations will, it is argued, eventually oblige the non-gold standard nations, which desire to enter the European markets, to return to monetary stability.

UGLY EPISODE

The other day two nasty incidents were reported from Europe, of men and women who grew violent when they found their aspirations balked and the doors of officialdom closed against their demands for a hearing. In Paris, where the undercurrent of political revolt always runs strong and where eruptions are apt to occur at any time, we have come to expect such outbursts as that arranged by the Communist element on Wednesday. But that a crowd of workless men and women should so far lose their perspective as to attempt to storm the Sheffield Town Hall to win an audience with the Council, is astonishing. Doubtless these people have a grievance. The justice of their claims we do not attempt to question. In fact our sympathy is with them, for they are many of them, deserving of an infinitely better state than that in which they find themselves by no fault of their own. But the remedy is not in violence. The moment they stoop to savagery, they lose a little of the sympathy their fellow people feel for them, and remove themselves that much further from redress. Gandhi can teach these reckless folk a lesson. His "fasts to the death" are a very different thing from mob attacks upon the solid walls of Government, and they accomplish infinitely more. We do not suggest that would-be petitioners go on hunger-strike outside the Sheffield Town Hall, but it would be safe to bet that if they approached the authorities through the channels provided they would have more chance of success than if they threw brick-bats.

SOVIET REFORM

Meanwhile, as British Conservatives and Labourites are playing political pitch and toss, or ups and downs, the Fatherland of Radicalism, Russia, is seeing a swing to the moderates. One might have thought that a revolution which was supposed to have put the proletariat in the saddle following the assassination of the Czar would have brought the common people a voice in the affairs of the nation, might have achieved a higher democracy than that known in any other state. But that was not the case. It is only now, years later, that the voter of Russia is to have the right of secret ballot; that industrial workers and peasants are to have equal suffrage rights. In other words, the revolution still progresses; and, its progressive phases have been from absolute monarchy to iron-fisted dictatorship, and from dictatorship to a tentative democracy in which the franchise will be universal. At least this is the plan. Presumably the leaders of the Soviet believe that the doctrines Stalin and his disciples have preached are deeply and firmly enough rooted to allow some little freedom at last. But it is unlikely that the Soviet will see in the near future any very conservative "opposition."

own use, and who, if their property is condemned, will, under existing rules, be left without a home. It is this circumstance that is causing a demand to be made for reasonable compensation in cases where genuine hardship is established. Such a demand could be met, and if due care were exercised in investigating cases, it should be possible to meet the point without adversely affecting the main purposes of the Government plans.

MR. PEPYS IN HONGKONG

Feb. 1st.—This day comes news that my business develops further interests in the City of Victoria and it may that I shall change my office to attend them. And what shall be the outcome God knows, for I am already so thronged with affairs that I can scarce find time to set pen to paper save upon the ordering of my office. To a preview of a picture and so home and reading in a good book before dinner, and so later to bed.

Feb. 2nd.—Up betimes but I do find the day to be very ill and so to my office very melancholique. Matters there having been ordered, to a preview of a picture which I did think would keep me but a short time. But Lord! when I am done with it, I am too late for my luncheon at the Clubbe, so I do take a glass of strong waters and some sandwiches, and so to the Valley where I watch the Krickett, and later home to my books.

Feb. 3rd. (Lord's Day).—Up pretty betimes and I do walk round my garden where I have not been these several days. But Lord! what with the fog and the rain it is a shame to see, for nothing will bloom, and so unless the sun doth shine in a few days I fear all will be rotted with the damp. Later writing in my study, and then to the Peake Clubbe, to find some books, for in these days there be little joy save in reading before a bright fire. There I meet Creed and we talk of this Tungchow piracy, wherein a brave guard was shot down and an engineer wounded, but, so far as may be known, no other violence. And until the Chinese do establish garrisons at Hai Hong Bay and Fan Wo Kwong I see not that any improvement can come, unless a country as large as Yorkshire be quite laid waste. But I am rejoiced to learn that their booty was of little value, while the children, being safe, have had a mighty fine adventure, with which they will keep humble all their school-mates, who have not been so favoured by fortune. Home to luncheon, and later, the rain preventing my going forth, toasted crumpets for tea. Later played a few hands at contract. And so to bed.

Feb. 4th.—This day, being the Lunar New Year, I did expect much disturbance with fire-crackers, but it is my good fortune to have my house so sheltered that I hear little noise. Up betimes and at work in my garden picking my sweet-peas which have blossomed very gallantly, and pulling a tomato or two. Yet these last are very slow to turn, and I am not minded to pluck them until they have a faint tinge of yellow, for so only do they ripen well in the house. Then, having broken my fast to the Krickett Clubbe where I drink my morning draught with Mr. Tom and some others, one of whom from Kowloon tells me that he thinks the crackers be less annoying this year. And indeed I am convinced that the Chinese now tend to ease the bigotry of their old superstitions. So, our slinkings being empty, after some little pawse we do decide that it being the New-Year, more ale is needed and we watch the Krickett over a second draught of ale. At first Mr. E. Duckitt who, as it seems, grows younger every day, doth lay about him lustily and Mr. Mitchell in no measure behind him. But later the game becomes mighty dull and so I goe to the Dockyard and visit the small shippe Decoy which I did know well when she was Witch. In the great cabin much cheer, but I did covet the copper pot they did use for an ash-tray, and I shall have it yet. But I am much at a stande that I did forget to span it, to see if it would pass through the port. Yet I doubt not in time I shall procure it for a nest for the Storkes at the Clubbe, tho' when I did say so I did detect upon Number One's features one of the meanest tarpawlin aspects. Of whom I must have a care. Took my luncheon at the Krickett Club and, there until late when I go home and play some contract hands with my wife, poor wretch, in the hope that I may improve my calling. Later we are very busy setting out our marketings of Water Fairy flowers which of set purpose we do buy as yet unflowering and so do have the pleasure of seeing them blossom. And this day I do find we have over a score and so they are set all over the house.

Feb. 5th.—A most foule day and the krickett is spoiled. After luncheon to the Valley where I see the Ladies play against the Shanghai Ladies and indeed the standard of comeliness, if not of hockey, be mighty high. The ground being so wet good play was much to seek, for all did slip about and fall in the mud, so that at the interval some did play in bare feet and after the game I was hard put to it to know which was girl and which was mud. But all did play very gallantly and I am sad at heart that I did not go to the dance. Home and smoked a pipe with my books.

Feb. 6th.—To the Clubbe where I find Mr. Povy mighty angered at certain questions that be asked in the Commons of smoking out the pirates' lair and he supposes the Member believes the pirates all to live in one village which has notice-boards set up to show what it is. Talking with my partners of my new branch and I do perceive I shall be much thronged with my business. Yet I shall have room enough of which I am glad, as our office here is but a little house and not big enough.

Feb. 7th.—Very busy all day in my office, and glad of it, the weather being foule again, and it is the worse I have known at this season all these years.

Feb. 8th.—Up very betimes, and having trimmed myself, to my office, and there do consider carefully of my new Office. And I am minded I have so many duties I shall no more have the occasions to write in this Journal. And so ends all that I doubt I shall ever have leisure to do in the keeping of a regular Journal, though it may be that in later years I may set down the more important events in this Colony from time to time. And so I betake myself to a new course, of which, and all that may accompany it, may I prove worthy.

BULLS AND INNERS

From the Office Butts

Judging by the crowd accommodated on the roof of Morrison Hill during the Interport match, it must have been built remarkably well.

A thief was arrested recently on the Canton train. They got him on the run.

We hear of a lady who bought a ticket in a big sweep because she dreamt of winning. A lass, a lakh!

We were glad to notice that the five young men who indulged in a rather heated argument concerning the ingredients in a cocktail, the other evening, made it up and shook.

It is said that scavengers who collect waste-paper from our streets, make quite a good income. A tidy sum in fact!

There is no truth in the rumour that a popular local Scotsman who won a pool at Fanning over the holidays, has offered to stand his friends tee.

Some people do make a fuss about farewells! At the Kowloon Wharf the other day three dogs were taken to the ship to say good-bye to their mistress. Much adieu about nothing.

A Berlin man who proposed to eighteen widows at the same time, is now safe in prison.

London postmen have organised a concert party. A mail voice choir?

A controversy has sprung up in London concerning the buzz of a famous Scotsman. We presume that below the noble features is a sign that reads "Don't Touch."

Now the Chinese holidays are over it is a case of blamuth as usual.

We notice that a horse named "Rumour" won a race at Home recently. Presumably there wasn't much weight attached to it!

During the Interport soccer match, one of the Shanghai players injured his foot. Shooting pains!

Three of the girls playing in the Hockey Interport were nearly eighteen. Fleet seventeen!

A reader wants to know whether bridge is a game of chance or of skill. A good deal depends on a good deal.

Few of us really know ourselves, says a lecturer. Some of us are to be congratulated.

"The Modern Woman Exposed," says the heading of a magazine article. Must be something about those backless frocks.

It's stated that a cigar which has been twice lighted is poisonous. So are some which are only lighted once.

London police recently unearthed an establishment where spurious spongers were being made. A kind of tannery.

A magazine writer says he's in favour of scrapping honymoons. The chief trouble, however, is the scrapping afterwards.

A lumberjack recently won a tree-chopping contest against over a hundred rivals. His pals celebrated the event by singing "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow."

A circus proprietor recently married a trapeze artiste. He gave her the ring.

A local journal, reporting a concert, says monologues given by an artiste who in fact happened to be absent owing to indisposition, were a feature of the evening. Must have been broadcast from his bedside.

Funnily enough, steelchasing in Hongkong is said to be on the level.

Which reminds us that both types are regarded as flat ring by the backer whose pony falls to win.

"Chains? Bosh—do you think I'm just learning to drive?"

The NECKLINES MAKE the DRESS

THE NEW WAY OF USING THE SCARF IS JUST ONE OF THE BRIGHT TOUCHES THE NEW FROCKS DISPLAY

NECKLINES are the most interesting things about the next season costumes that are flooding the market right now. The girl who is buying clothes for an early vacation, is lucky indeed.

The scarf necklines that promise to be so popular this Summer are exactly what their name implies. The dress generally is cut with a perfectly plain, round neck and then a suave scarf, attached across the back, comes around and crosses high in front.

Some of the scarfs are long; others are quite short, with ends worn out over shoulders. Not many fringed scarfs are being shown, but there is profusion of printed designs on plain dark dresses, and many hand-painted motifs.

If you don't like to wear a scarf on the outside of your neckline, loop it over, tuck it inside and then place a pin below the loop.

As you may have guessed from all this talk about scarf treatments, necklines are going to be high for daytime. There will be plain little round collars on some of them and high square ones on others.

No longer will a lady step in formal attire with her neck and shoulders swathed in fabric. The new décolletages for evening will be fairly low in front and extremely low in back. Shoulders as well as throats and chests will be allowed to show.

If you're getting an evening dress look at lace, satin, flat crepe and faille.

Next to necklines, intricate details are the outstanding features of the cloths in the shops today. Dark street frocks have white sleeves to match white scarf necklines, and one-piece dresses are cut to resemble two-piece models. Often a peplum effect is removable.

One smart dress for vacation days has its peplum attached to a sash. You can take it off, substitute a plain belt and have something that looks quite different. This same dress has three-quarters sleeves that can be worn either above the elbow or below.

Another charming model, shown at a recent New York fashion show, has a hip-length jacket and dress with round necklines that is finished with a wide scarf. Buttonholes on the ends of the scarf slide over buttons on the jacket and make the outfit look like a one-piece frock with surprise side panels on the bodice.

One of the newest and simplest ways of adding freshness to a dress you are tired of is to top it with a sailor collar. Choose a bright colour—red, green, yellow or any other that is becoming. With a belt of the same hue the dress will be transformed.

There is a great variety in the outline of these collars. They may be square, rounded, or with points over the shoulders. The nautical note is not confined to sport or daytime costumes, but has been used on some stunning evening frocks.

THIS BLACK lace evening gown with low décolletage is perfect for early summer dances.

THE ONE-PIECE dress of rough black crepe in the centre has a stunning scarf neckline and long sleeves of white rough crepe.

EINSTEIN MAKES IT CLEAR

MASS AND ENERGY EQUIVALENT

An attention-compelling figure was Prof. Albert Einstein at the conference of the American Association for the Advancement of Science in Pittsburgh, where, as shown here, the famed scientist announced his new and simplified proof that mass and energy are equivalent. He neatly parried one question on science with the remark, "A prediction is like shooting in the dark in a land where there are few birds."

A new and simplified proof that mass and energy are equivalent, which was presented in a lecture by Dr. Albert Einstein, was discussed to-day by the members of the American Association for the Advancement of Science at Pittsburgh, who heard this, his first lecture in English.

The equivalence of mass and energy has become a matter of great importance to physical scientists in the last three years in their investigations of the nature of the nucleus of the atom. They expect considerable practical progress to result from these investigations.

They have concluded that 99 per cent of all solid substances in the earth and its atmosphere are contained in the atomic nuclei. Now a new branch of science, nuclear chemistry, is striving to discover ways of tapping this 99 per cent of energy as well as of mass.

COLLISION OF PARTICLES

Dr. Einstein, like most other leading physical scientists, does not believe that all this energy can be realized and utilized as power, but he does not think it impossible that useful fractions of it may be put to work as a result of research now beginning. These investigations may also lead to the discovery of new materials and of new labour-saving devices.

Getting rid of complicated electro-magnetic fields previously employed in proof of the equivalence of mass and energy, he used instead the collision of two material particles.

Such a collision might be one of two kinds, he pointed out. The impact might be "elastic"—in which no heat would be lost, or it might be "inelastic"—in which case the particles might stick together, generating heat in the process, and this heat, which is energy, would be lost by radiation.

In both cases, he declared, the law of energy and momentum would apply and there would be no loss in the total of mass and energy.

SIMPLICITY

In spite of the old tradition that only a scant dozen men really understand the Einstein Theory, none of the 400 mathematicians and physicists who, by drawing lots, succeeded in gaining admittance to the Little Theatre of Carnegie Institute of Technology to hear the lecture seemed puzzled by this new proof of one of its important features.

"It is significant for its simplicity," is one comment often heard to-day.

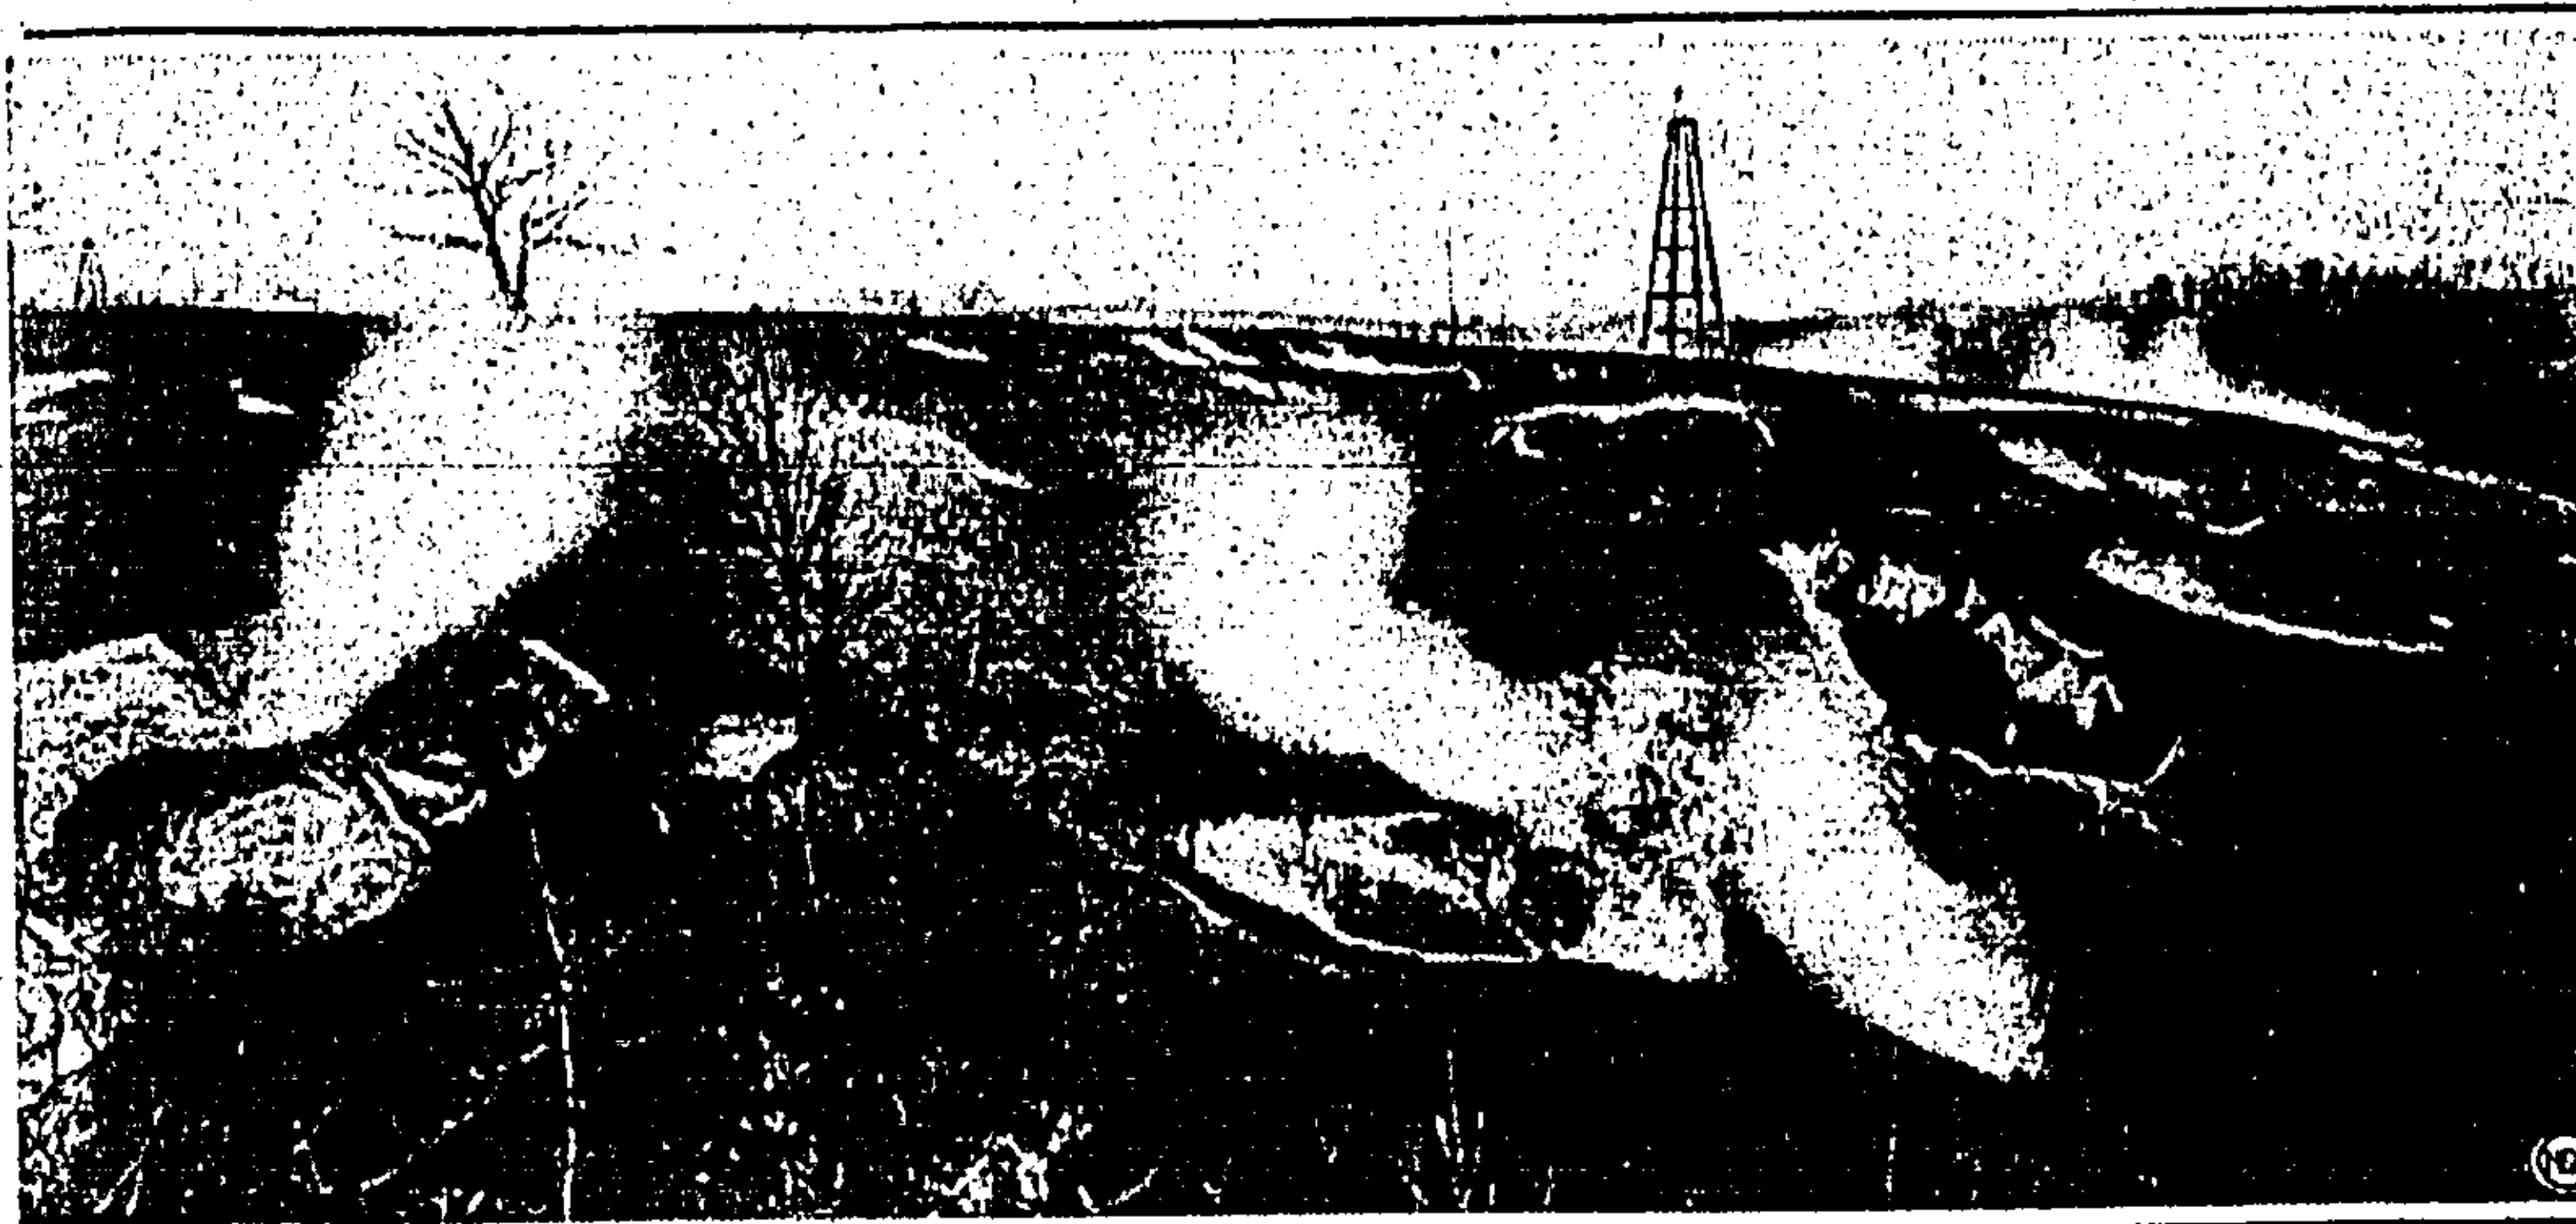

"It will be particularly good in teaching students the theory of relativity in a shorter time," is another remark made by many.

RELATIVITY IN MOTION

Dr. W. B. Cartmel, however, speaking before the American Physical Society, took exception to Principle One of Einstein's Theory. He preferred the statement of Heaviside, he said, who found a system of standing light waves following a mirror with mirror's (Continued on Column 4.)

FIGHTING FIRE WHICH HAS RAGED FOR FIFTY YEARS

WHOLE TOWN THREATENED BY STRANGE MAN-MADE INFERNO

Flames creeping relentlessly for 50 years through rich coal fields toward New Straitsville, are shown here as they sweep a 30-acre hill, an appalling picture of desolation and destruction, with fire, smoke, and deadly gases issuing from deep pits.

Uncle Sam is getting some strange jobs wished on him these days, but this is the first time he has been asked to become a fireman in a big whole-sale way.

New Straitsville's fire, however, is so big, and has been unsuccessfully fought for so many years that the plea for federal aid is actively being considered.

Over an area of some six square miles near here, the earth smokes and shrivels as great fissures open up to let out the gases and vapors of an underground conflagration that has been raging for 50 years. Rich coal seams, ignited during a bloody mine strike in 1884, have burned sullenly ever since, and defied every effort to extinguish the blaze.

And the fire is spreading to-day into new territory, threatening to consume not only the rest of the valuable nine and ten-foot strata here, but also to attack the famous Hocking Valley fields, which lie directly in its path.

In 50 years of steady burning, this fire is estimated to have destroyed $50,000,000 worth of excellent coal, with $60,000,000 more in its path in the Hocking fields.

FINAL FIGHT PLANNED

Government mining engineers are just finishing a survey of the region herabouts with a view to getting federal PWA funds to put some 600 men at work after the first of the year in a final effort to stop the destruction.

It will be a Herculean job, for many efforts of private interests have failed, at great expense.

The famous mine fires originated, according to local legend, with a particularly vicious and bloody coal strike in 1884. Blood ran freely in Perry county in clashes of strikers, non-strikers and state militia.

One dark night, after the conflict had dragged on for six months, a body of striking miners seized several loaded coal cars on a tippie, poured barrels of oil over the coal, touched a match to them, and ran the blazing cars down into a mine a mile below the surface.

WHOLE MINE ABLAZE

In less than 24 hours the whole mine was ablaze, and for 50 years every effort to smother the blaze, with its million dollars' worth of damage each year, has failed.

Once the course of a creek was diverted to an opening in a mine passageway, and the water poured down into the inferno, with no results.

Cement walls have been sunk into the earth, known crevices have been sealed, and steam forced down into the labyrinth of chasms. This, too, failed.

Crevices and air channels, opening up on the hills, keep fanning the blaze to new furies. Valuable forests of the vicinity have been killed or stunted by the noxious gases, heat and fumes that rise from the inferno.

SCHOOL IN PERIL

The entire neighbourhood is studded with cave-ins, great holes, and fissures which seem to have no bottom. People have been known to be overcome by the fumes. Just back of the new $80,000 high school building a dozen homes were recently abandoned when their foundations suddenly buckled. The foundations of the school itself sank when the fire reached a coal vein beneath them, and the glowing coal had to be lifted out by expert miners to prevent collapse.

Directly in front of another school, the roadway sank five feet, and on a big hill nearby, a cavernous crack extends for a mile. Looking down into it for 50 feet nothing can be seen but a seething mass of coals.

CISTERN ON FIRE

One man on the edge of town went out in the morning to draw water from his cistern. He found it full of fire. The marching conflagration had eaten into it during the night and dried up all the water.

The fire also ate away the strata under the foundations of his home, which had to be torn down.

Any extensive mining in this rich coal area is now impossible, for no sooner is a shaft sunk than the fire may eat into it at any moment. It isn't worth the chance of losing the investment.

speed. He quoted Heaviside as follows:

"We see that everything goes on in the same way as if the uniformly moving ether were at rest. This is merely an example of the principle of relativity of motion. The motion of the ether merely carries forward the phenomena going on in it."

STORES OF ENERGY

Energy: undreamed of five years ago have been found to exist in cosmic rays, Dr. Robert A. Millikan told teachers of science attending sessions here. Up to 10,000,000,000 electron volts and more is now conceived highly possible and constitutes "one of the most amazing facts of modern physics."

Promising "much important news on cosmic radiation in the next 12 months," Dr. Millikan admitted "all too little is known" concerning its source, nature and power.

Regretfully he felt it was too bad to drag an interested public "through all our mistakes as we cosmic ray experimenters have done in numerous instances during the past four years."

RESTRICTION OF CRIMINALS

"We cannot breed a race of supermen but we can limit the production of criminals and other undesirable," Dr. Ernest A. Hooton, Harvard professor of anthropology, told the honorary science society of Sigma XI at its lecture last night.

Tossing a further bombshell into the front line of "benignvolent humanitarianism," the Cambridge savant left himself open to wide attack. "Let us cease to delude ourselves with the belief that education, religion, or other measures of social amelioration can transform base metal into gold. Public enemies must be destroyed—not reformed. We need to segregate and sterilize the antisocial and the mentally unfit."

PICCARD TELLS NEEDS

Dr. Jean Piccard, explorer of the stratosphere, attended talks on cosmic rays and heard the results obtained from his own recent flight and that of the United States Army flares last summer and the call for more data at higher levels. "All I need is financial backing," he said when asked to comment.

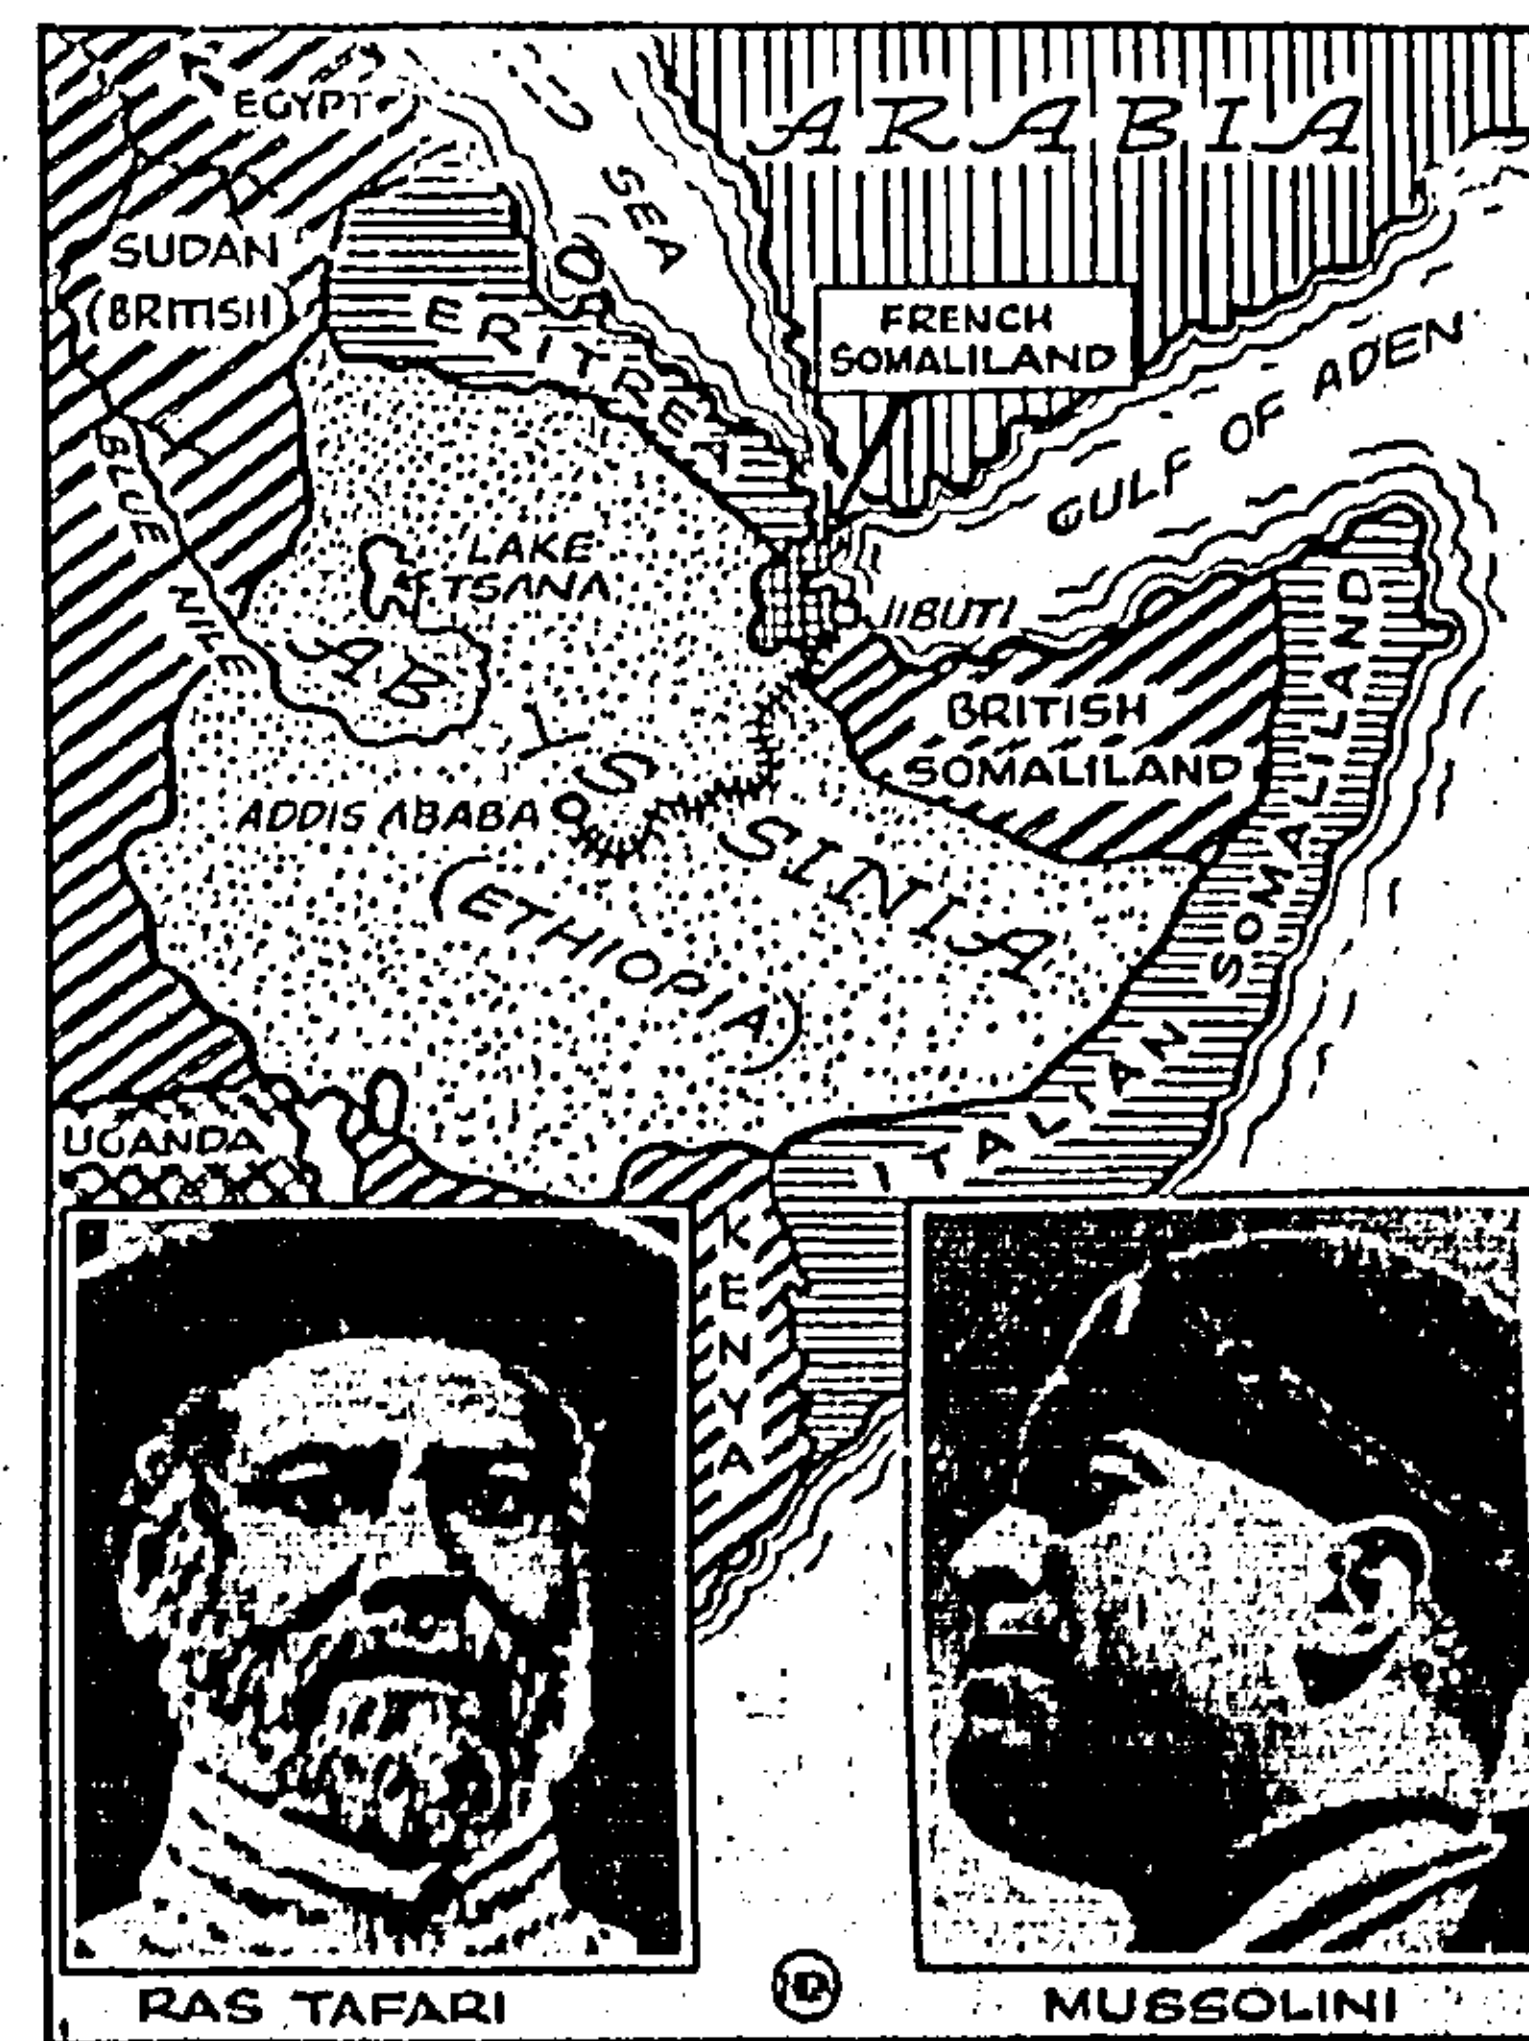

"If someone will put up the cash I am quite certain that I can take a ship up 20 miles. These trips are expensive. The gas bag costs plenty. The metal ball isn't so high, because there are chances to dicker with various companies and use their metal for advertising purposes. At the time of my last flight the aluminium strike came along so that I was able to get gas free because there was little demand for it then."

Fire spouting from his cistern, as shown above, greeted an amazed New Straitsville resident when he went there for water. Flames in the giant coal fire in that vicinity had eaten through the brick wall and dried up all the water. Miners barely escaped with their lives when fire broke through the sides of a small drift mine, shown at left, burning a deep natural "fireplace" in this hillside.

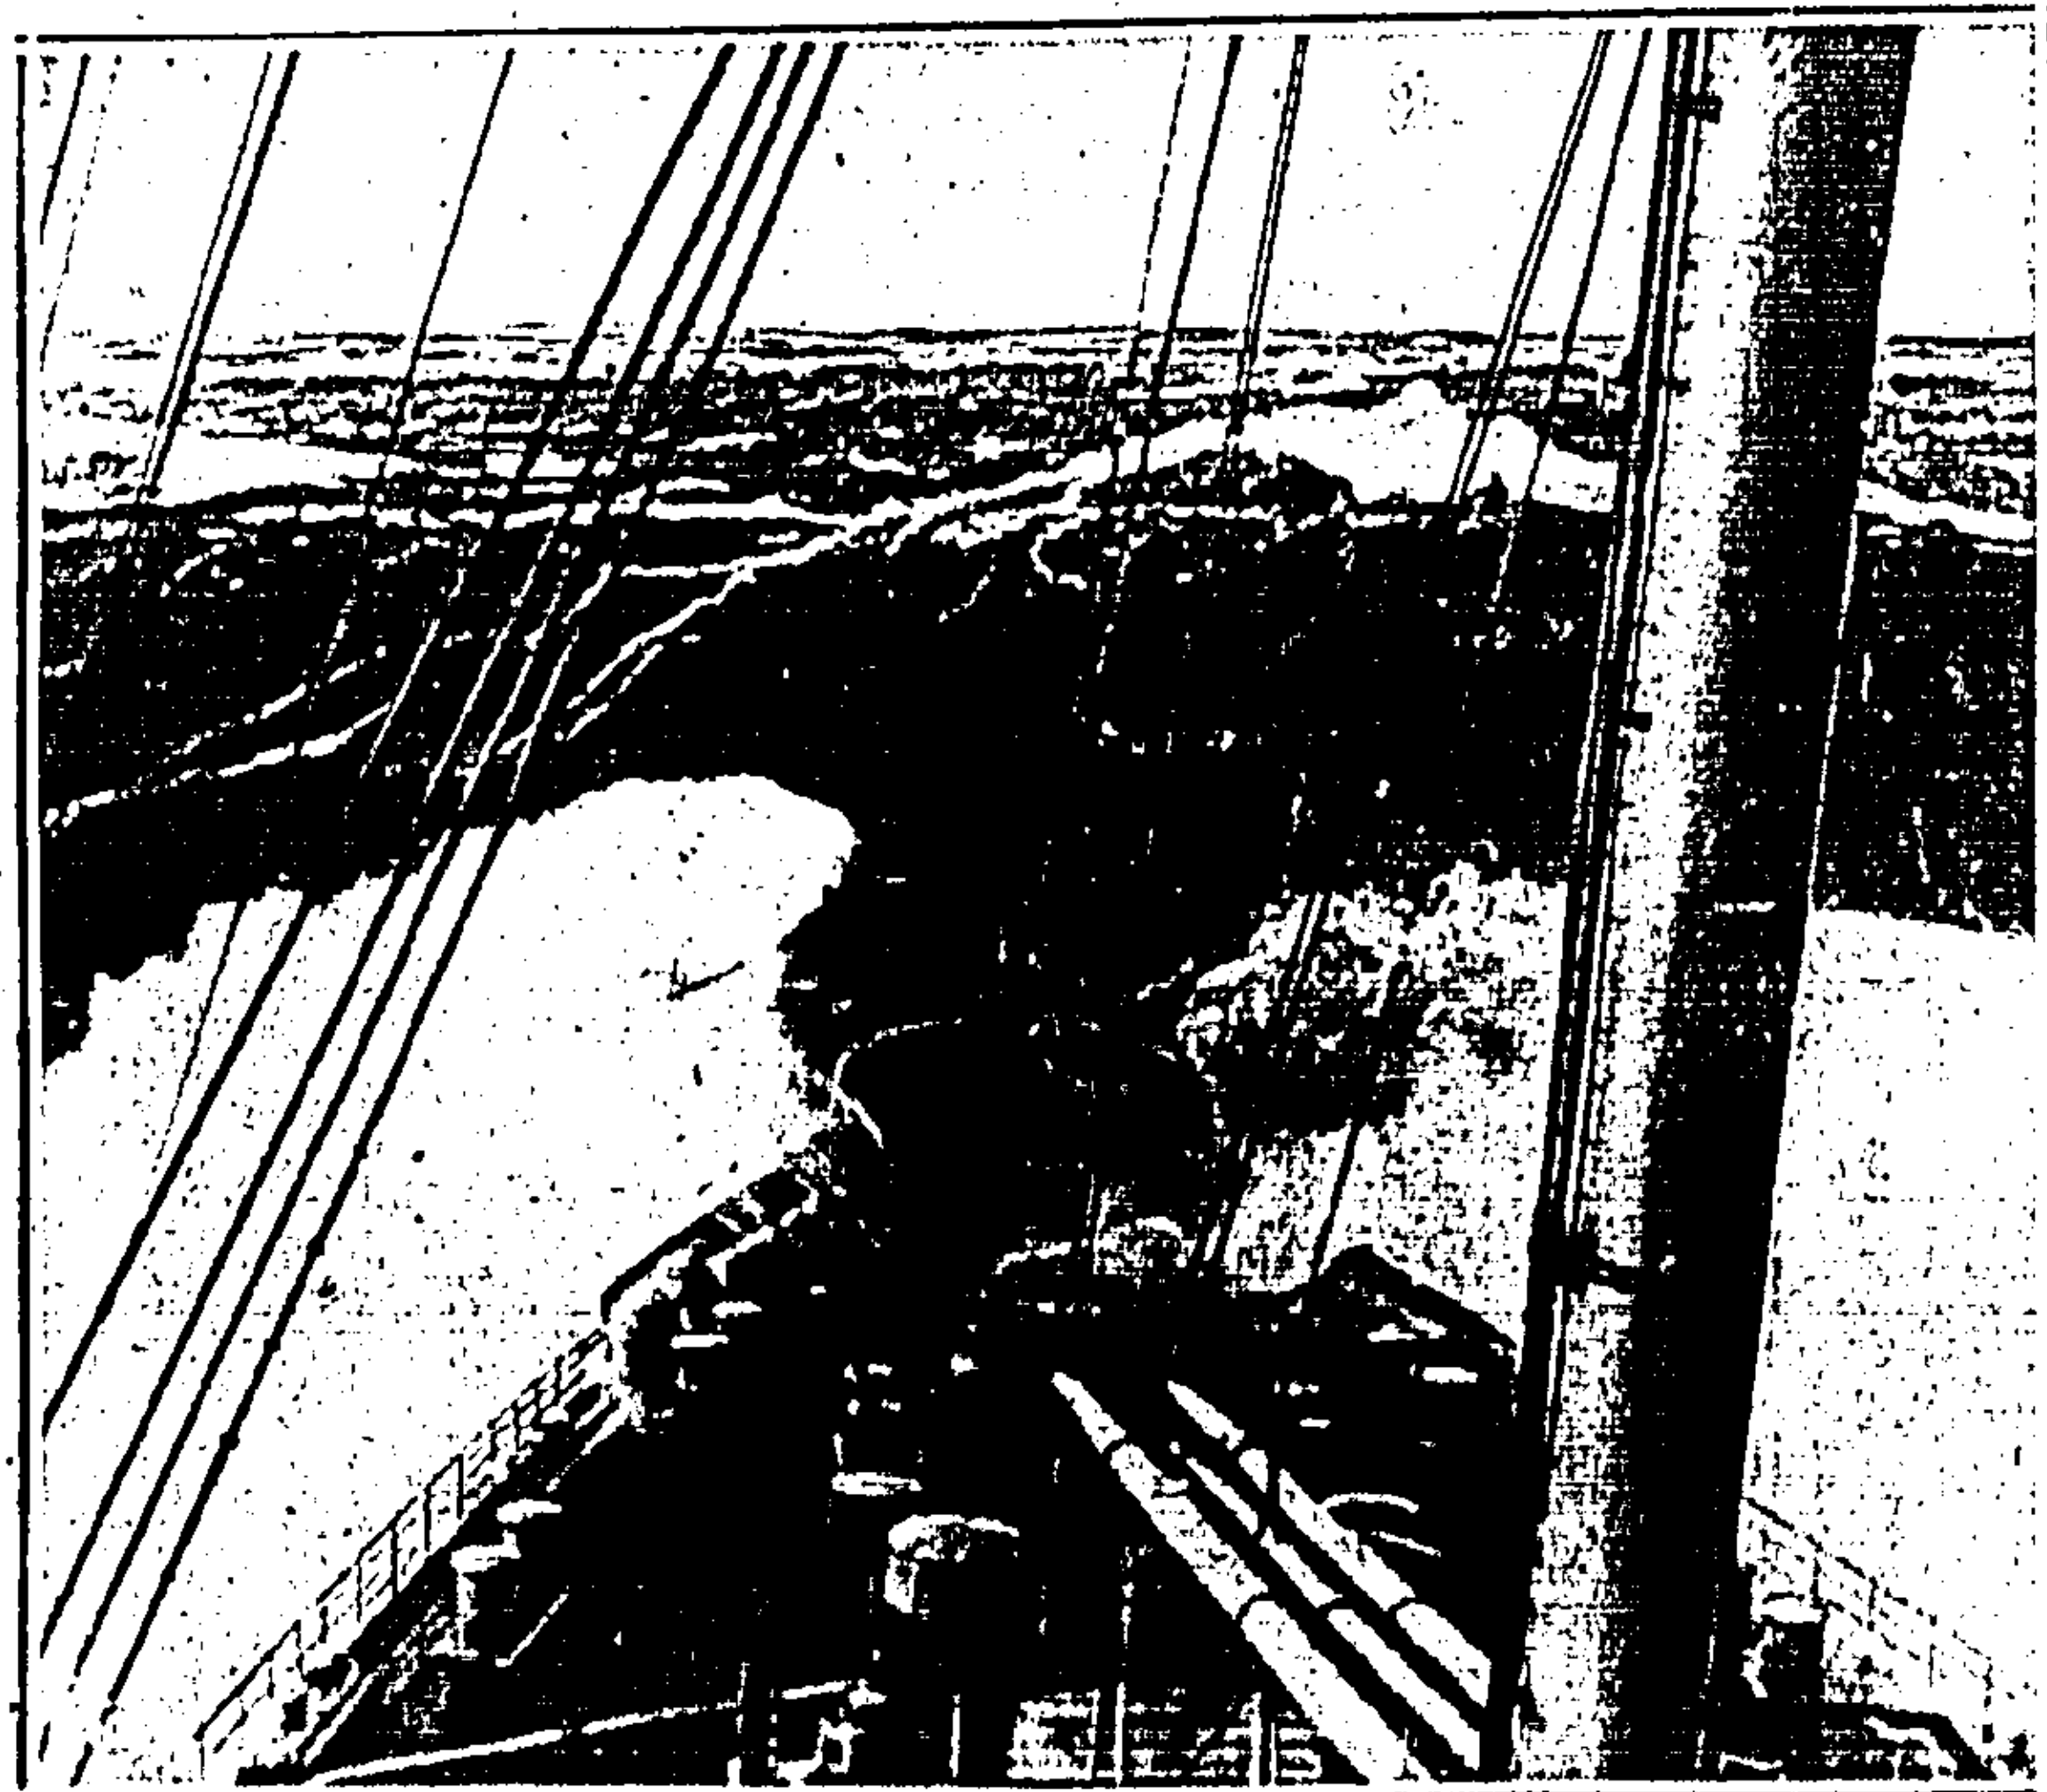

Property values in the town of 3,500 have dropped almost to zero, for the fires have reached within 1,000 feet of the main street, and the ever-present veil of smoke and noxious gases makes living conditions unhealthy. If Uncle Sam undertakes this world's biggest job as a fireman, it will bring new hope to long-suffering residents of a doomed community, and save valuable natural resources. So they wait with anxiety the report of federal engineers studying the strange man-made inferno.

WHERE AMBITIONS CLASH

Along the border between Italian Somaliland and the ancient kingdom of Abyssinia, menacing clashes have recently occurred. Hammed in by European possessions and ambitions, Ras Tafari, reigning descendant of the Queen of Sheba, strives to keep an independent kingdom. British Egypt depends for life on water from the Blue Nile, rising in Lake Tana. French interests built the only railway, from the port of Djibouti in French Somaliland to the Abyssinian capital, Addis Ababa. Italian coastal colonies of Eritrea and Somaliland are expanding, militarized, and would like to connect across Abyssinia. This makes further military exploits possible.

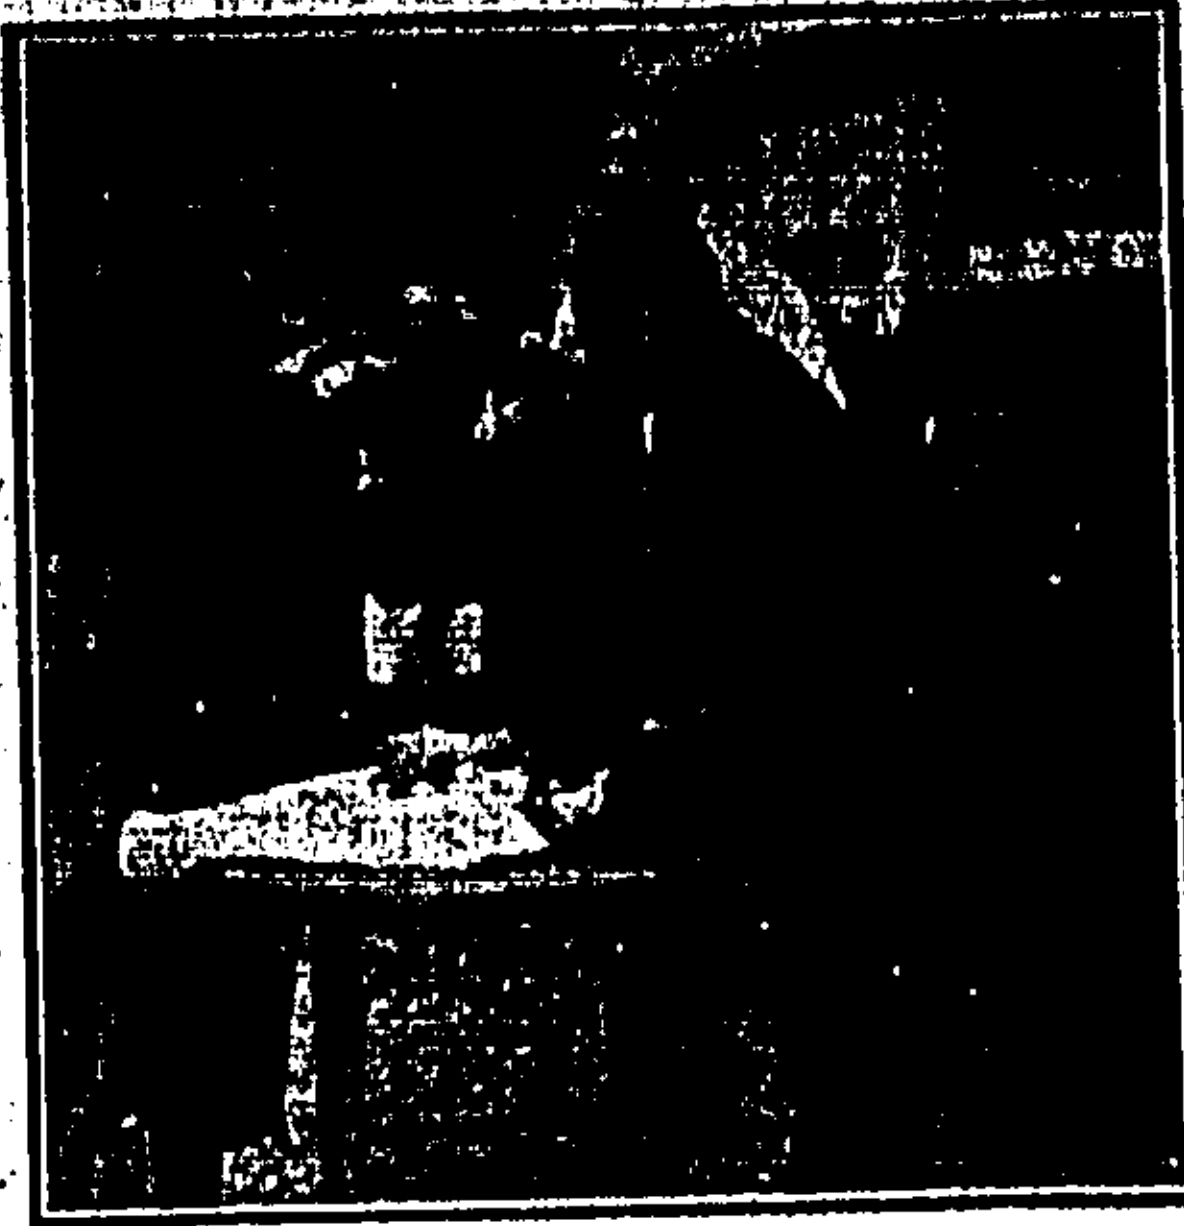

REAL ATLANTIC STORM

The mountainous waves piled up by North Atlantic storms to menace the lives of thousands of seamen and travellers are vividly brought home by this photograph taken from the bridge of the S. S. Europa. The height of the waves is revealed by the fact that, while the Europa's bridge is far more than 100 feet above the waterline, it is barely possible to see over the crest of the onrushing water.

CURRENT MOTOR NOTES

BY "ROADSTER"

A perusal of the Chairman's speech at the annual general meeting, indicates to what a great extent local motorists are indebted to the Hongkong Automobile Association; and yet it is revealed that out of nearly three thousand private car owners, only 726 paid their subscriptions last year!

Some motorists are apparently no different from any other section of the community—merely content to take most things for granted, and forgetting to realise that they enjoy many advantages which are created in their own interest by such a public-spirited body as the H.K.A.A.

CAR PARKING

One of the most important aspects of Mr. J. M. Manner's speech was that dealing with the question of car parking. It was in July, 1933, that, following almost daily complaints of petty-theft from parked cars, and other annoyances, the Inspector General of Police decided to place the control of all car parks in the hands of the Association, and motorists generally will agree that a much better state of affairs exists as a result. There is one particular point in connection with this, that very few motorists appear to appreciate, and which is the strongest possible argument in favour of every owner in the Colony becoming a member. Prior to placing the control of car parks with the H.K.A.A., it was seriously considered making a charge of ten dollars per month to all motorists who made use of these parks, with a proportionate rate for daily parking. Motorists have to thank the Association that this system was not adopted, for, as it is now, the use of parking space is free to all, whether members of the Association or not, and further, an efficiently organised car cleaning service is available at the moderate charge of $5 per month to non-members and $4 to members.

A REMINDER

Motorists must remember that such an organisation cannot be conducted for nothing, and it is a reflection upon every owner who remains outside membership of the Association that last year's working showed a loss of $3,973.00! It is quite safe to assert that every motorist benefits by the work done by the H.K.A.A., and even if so much has been taken as a matter of course, it is to be hoped that this reminder will stir every non-member to his or her sense of responsibility in ensuring that 1935 will make a better and more appreciative showing.

COMMERCIAL SECTION

In connection with the valuable work performed by the Association, it is interesting to learn that it is intended to create a commercial section, under which owners of commercial vehicles will be enabled to join and receive equally valuable benefits as those enjoyed by the ordinary motorist. The suggestion has already been approved by the Committee, and it is expected that a suitable scheme will be in operation before very long.

FOG DANGER

The recent foggy spell has again served to emphasise the dangers encountered when driving on the upper portion of the road to The Peak under such conditions. It is observed, however, that the side channels have lately been whitened, thus providing useful guiding marks. Quite a number of cars are equipped with anti-fog lamps fitted with amber coloured glass, and these do unquestionably serve a useful purpose. Quite a good make-shift can be provided by placing a piece of orange coloured paper on the inside of the lens of head-lamps.

SMALL TAXIS

So popular are the small two-seater taxis in Kowloon (not to refer to their moderate fares) that it is surprising that they have not been introduced on the island side of the Colony. These vehicles are extremely useful in the case of one passenger and they must surely lessen the demand for rickshaws which do create an additional traffic menace to motorists. Incidentally, these bijou cars would surely fill a most useful purpose in The Peak district.

MAGAZINE GAP ROAD

The short-cut to The Peak has proved of immense value in time-saving, and the noticeable increase in traffic using Garden Road clearly illustrates how greatly appreciated this new work is amongst Peak motorists. The winding nature of the new route calls for the utmost caution, especially when making the descent, and all drivers should remember to drop down to "second" at the top of the decline. If it is found that this is too severe a check, it is a simple matter to "go up into third" and from the point of view of "Safety First" this should be one of the golden rules applied in this particular locality.

TOBACCO DUTY

TO BE LEVIED ON LOCAL PRODUCT

The Gazette contains the draft of an Ordinance to amend the Tobacco Ordinance, 1931.

The purpose of this amending Ordinance is to enable duties to be imposed on tobacco which has been grown in the Colony.

"Tobacco" is defined by section 2 (m) of the principal Ordinance (No. 39 of 1931) as including all tobacco other than growing tobacco, whether manufactured or not.

Section 7 (1) of the principal Ordinance permitted the Legislature, by resolution, to impose new duties only on tobacco thereafter imported into the Colony or already in the Colony at the time of coming into operation of such resolution. Section 2 of the amending Ordinance removes that restriction.

Section 3 of the amending Ordinance adds a new section, 11A, to the principal Ordinance providing for the time of payment of any duty which may be imposed on tobacco grown in the Colony.

ROTARY DELEGATES

HONGKONG UNABLE TO WELCOME THEM

The Hongkong Rotary Club had arranged a special "Ladies Day" dinner for Thursday, February 14, at the Hongkong Hotel, when it was expected that a party of between 250 and 300, including delegates to the Fifth Pacific Rotary Conference at Manila, local Rotarians and guests, would be entertained.

H.E. the Governor and Lady Peel had promised to be present, and Sir William Peel was to welcome the delegates on behalf of the Colony.

Unfortunately, news was received yesterday that the a.s. President Coolidge, on which the delegates are travelling, has been delayed by bad weather in the Pacific. This will interfere with the various entertainments arranged for the delegates by the Shanghai Rotary Club, and will cancel the Hongkong programme altogether, for the ship will not arrive here until late in the evening of Thursday, February 14, and will sail for Manila at 8 a.m. on Friday, February 15. However, contact will be established for a Hongkong delegation will join the ship and proceed to the Conference. The party will be led by the President of the Rotary Club, Mr. M. K. Lo.

Members of Rotary Clubs from the Pacific coast of North and South America, Honolulu, Japan, China, Hongkong, Malaya, Burma, India, Australia and New Zealand, will assemble at Manila from February 18 to 20 on the occasion of the Fifth Pacific Rotary Conference which is this year being held in the Philippine Islands. Previous Conferences have been held in Honolulu (twice), Tokyo, and Sydney.

The Conference will open on the morning of Monday, February 18, when addresses of welcome will be given by the Governor General of the Philippine Islands, the President of the Philippine Senate, the Mayor of the City of Manila, and the President of the Rotary Club of Manila. Mr. Ernest F. Harris, who is Honorary Commissioner for China, Hongkong and the Philippine Islands will reply on behalf of the visitors.

International Goodwill.

After the conference at Manila, Mr. and Mrs. Harris will continue on to Australia and New Zealand. President and Mrs. Hill will go on to the Netherlands Indies, India, and on through Europe and the British Isles.

In more than a score of countries on the borders of the Pacific there are Rotary clubs. Representatives of the clubs in many of these countries will gather in Manila to discuss frankly and informally the many problems arising from their international relations.

REFLECTIONS ON THE FOOTBALL INTERPORT

AS I SEE IT—BY
"VERITAS"

LOCAL SOCCER RETURNS TO THE NORMAL

FULL PROGRAMME OF LEAGUE GAMES THIS WEEK-END

NAVY FORCED TO MAKE EIGHT CHANGES IN TEAM

(By "Veritas")

Local football makes a welcome return to normal league programmes this afternoon and to-morrow, last week's postponed fixtures being brought forward. Once again we find South China "A", who are slightly behind the rest of the first division teams in the number of matches played, engaged in two games, while similar demands are being made of the Royal Welch Fusiliers.

With the Navy playing South China "A" this afternoon, I would ordinarily regard the Chinese unbeaten record as being in danger, but the "Nauticals" have been so badly affected by the departure of some of the Fleet, that their team to-day is quite unrecognisable to that which has been doing service since December, and I imagine South China will win comfortably.

EIGHT CHANGES

A fortnight ago the Navy turned out the following side which very nearly beat South China in the Senior Shield:—Pepper, Rycroft, and West; Pyatt, McGuire, and Love; Roberts, Cousins, Gray, Cannell, and Skinner. To-day only Gray, Roberts and Skinner remain of that team, and the Navy will field the following strange and unknown combination:

Cocker (Hermes); Beard and Moss (Hermes); Hughes (Hermes); Bennett (Berwick) and Goodrich (Darling); Kiley (Cornwall) Roberts (Cornwall) Gray (Darling) Constable (Delight) and Skinner (Duncan).

The last named is captain, and the reserves are:—Golding (Delight), Lancashire (Defender), Phillips (Darling), and Stanley (Dainty).

South China anticipate one, or at the most two, changes. Tay Qun-hang is almost certain to remain an absentee, and Tun Kong-pak will play at inside left, with Wong Mee-shun at inside right. Leung Wing-chui will again appear at centre-half. Ip Pak-wai may not turn out, in which case Lee Hung-ching will probably be introduced.

CLUB'S INTERESTING FIXTURE

The league leaders entertain the Fusiliers Sunday, and despite the soldiers' greatly improved form against St. Joseph's a fortnight ago, I do not expect to see them withstand the all-conquering Chinese, especially at Caroline Hill.

The Club have an interesting game to-day, when they are hosts to the Lincolns, who have more than once upset them in the face of popular prognostications.

Hill is taking over Ernest Strange's vacated inside-left position in the Club team, while Forrow from the second eleven, is being introduced at inside right to-day. Drown is still under medical orders and is not likely to play again this season. The defence remains as before, with Hynes continuing to operate at right half. The team will be:

Our Revels Now Are Ended

POST-INTERPORT SOLOQUY

(By L. S. B.)

Our revels now are ended. These our actors,
As I foretold you, were all spirits and
Are melted into air, into thin air;
And like this insubstantial pageant faded,
Leave not a rack behind.

Now all that remains to do is to get down to work, and most have done that already. Our excursionists have plodded their weary way home, our visitors, like the Arabs, have silently stolen away—or fairly silently, anyway—in the dead of night. The shouting and the tumult has died and the Interport is over; a memory remembered with sighs or smiles—or groans—until another year has passed and the struggle starts again. When once more the cohorts assemble and Hongkong like the wolf on the fold (or so it is hoped) will descend on Shanghai, their captains once again encouraging their willing men—

Once more unto the breach, dear friends, once more,
Hold hard the breath and bend up
To his full height.

The following will represent the Hongkong Football Club First XV against the Combined Services at Sookunpoo, on Saturday, February 9, at 4.15 p.m.: L. G. Robertson, W. H. B. Rigg, R. H. Griffiths, G. P. Lam, M. H. R. McGilchrist, M. W. Turner, J. Hutchison, A. F. Walkden, W. E. Peers, H. O. Bramble, R. G. Castleton, S. H. Garrod, K. A. Munro, G. A. Stewart, J. C. Miller.

FINE SPORTSMANSHIP A BIG FEATURE

DID VISITORS TURN OUT BEST XI ON MONDAY?

ARRANGEMENTS REFLECT CREDIT ON HONGKONG F. A.

WHEN in years to come the sporting annals of Hongkong are checked up it will be impossible to ignore the Colony's achievements during Chinese New Year of 1935. Records will reveal that we enjoyed more Interport successes than in any previous year, and although it is not our intention now to boast about this, the performances of our leading sports players can be regarded with deep satisfaction. Never before have the qualities of sportsmanship been better manifest than by the participants in the soccer, rugby and hockey Interports which featured the New Year celebrations here, and in Macao and Shanghai during the last few days. These sporting contests between the various China Coast ports are not only opportunities to reveal the skill of local players in the various branches of sport, but have the more subtle, but equally important underlying motive of binding more firmly the ties of friendship and mutual understanding between the peoples of the ports, especially the differing nationalities. This has all been said before, but it is a feature of Interport contests which may be somewhat lost in the excitement of the games themselves, and is something which cannot therefore be over-emphasised.

TWO SPORTING TEAMS

HONGKONG this year had the pleasure of welcoming soccer and hockey teams from Shanghai, and it is no idle observation to remark that from the viewpoint of sportsmanship alone, Shanghai has never been better represented. In making possible the innovation of a ladies' hockey Interport, our friends from Shanghai had to overcome financial difficulties, an effort which in itself stands out as a fine tribute to their courage and keenness. On the other hand the footballers had to contend with team-raising obstructions and disappointing results, and it is when we take these factors into consideration that our joy in winning the matches is allied with appreciation of Shanghai's gameness. Our Shanghai visitors naturally felt the loss of the football and hockey games rather keenly, but they may find comfort in the fact that Hongkong has never entertained two more sporting teams.

SHANGHAI'S LOST FORM

NOW that the first flush of victory has worn off, it is possible to sit back and regard the matches in a reasoned light of retrospectiveness. The one dominant point which the football series emphasised was that in the all important game against Hongkong, Shanghai played amazingly below form. This excuse was never advanced by Shanghai, but it was made obvious in the encounters against the Combined Chinese and the United Services. The Interport game left the impression that Shanghai were so completely outplayed that it would be impossible to select from the 14 players sent down a combination capable of offering serious opposition to a representative Colony team. How erroneous was this impression, when players, already made weary by two hard games and a round of social engagements, whipped a powerful Services combination in a manner which stamped them as players of real skill. I should very much like to see that same team opposed to Hongkong's Interport outfit; I doubt very much if there would be more than the odd goal in it at the end of the game.

THE BIG DISAPPOINTMENT

THE big disappointment about the Shanghai team was the forward line. The players themselves made no bones about it, and I think I can say that both Mr. "Jack" Watson and Mr. Rupert Grimshaw were horrified at their failure in the first two games. Shanghai's chief hopes were placed in the forwards. It was admitted on their arrival, "Our fellows can score goals, and when they get going, they go some," declared Mr. Watson in an interview a week ago. I suspect that Shanghai's Interport plan was to score a couple of quick goals and then concentrate on defence, and the fact that this plan, if it was laid, was completely upset by Hongkong, who managed to take the initiative, does not exonerate the Shanghai forwards, although it provides mitigation. The whole point was that, notwithstanding the fact they had the territorial advantages throughout the second half, Shanghai allowed themselves to be forced to adopt a foreign game. N. Z. Li, Bolesee and Colloco, for instance, score a large percentage of their goals in league soccer from 20 to 30 yards range. In the Interport they were trying to work the ball up to the goal line before shooting. Snap shooting is the stuff which scores goals in such matches. Pattern-weaving up to the goal line is permissible only if rounded off by goal-scoring shots.

ANOTHER POSSIBLE REASON

BUT the subsequent display of the Shanghai forwards suggested another reason for their Interport failure. Is it possible that they did not turn out the best team from their 14 players? Certainly most of us were astonished to learn that Marel, an almost life-long full back, had been moved up to the left wing in place of Greenberg, who, to all intents and purposes, had been chosen for that position. The final selection of A. J. Symons at centre-half was another move which did not altogether

Y.M.C.A. TO PLAY MACAO

Strong Hockey Team Being Sent

The European Y.M.C.A. Hockey Club is sending the best team they have ever fielded to Macao to-morrow to engage the powerful Portuguese team in the annual match.

D. McLellan, fresh back from his Interport rugby engagements in Shanghai is turning out at centre-half, while G. Sommer, who was at one time picked for the Colony, is at left back.

The three Fowler brothers are playing, and the forward line is strengthened by the inclusion of T. J. Price, the Club winger.

The team is:

F. Fowler; E. F. Selk and G. Sommer; J. Farmer, D. McLellan, and R. A. Bates; S. Fowler, G. H. Fowler, W. J. Brown, H. P. Moser, and T. J. Price (Captain).

Mr. G. T. Palmer is travelling up to act as one of the referees.

CLUB LOSE TO EAST LANCS.

Fast Hockey Match At King's Park

Though the play was largely centred round the soldiers' goal, the Club failed to score in a friendly hockey match with the East Lancashire second string yesterday at King's Park, and were defeated two goals to nil.

The game was moderately fast but marked by many errors, the forwards failing repeatedly to take advantage of good opportunities. The East Lancashire broke through the Club defence many times but failed to score more freely owing to the excellent work of Moss in goal, and to their own rather erratic hitting.

The teams were:—Pte. McArthur; Corp. Kennedy, Sgt. Lester; L. Corp. Murphy, Pte. Gamble, Lt. Com. Ellis, Lt. Russell; Pte. Little, Dmr. Johnson, Dmr. Sharples, Dmr. Snelson.

Club:—A. Moss; R. H. D. Lane, L. F. Nicholson; J. E. Henry, E. G. Dale, E. W. Shewan; H. R. Wood, A. A. Bothello, F. S. Smith, Rev. Bennett, P. H. Senior.

TALL SCORING

A team from the 8th Destroyer Flotilla drew with the 1st Bat. H.K.S.A. both teams scoring six goals. The play was fast, and despite the score, fairly even. The navy team had gained a lead of 4-1 by the end of the first half and this became six three early in the second. The R.A. rallied during the last ten minutes, however, and levelled up with three goals in rapid succession. The work of the forwards during this period was excellent.

The teams were:—R.A.:—Gnr. Foray Khan; Harildar Ahmed Khan, Jomadar Amrick Singh; Majol McIntyre, L. Nk. Kishen Singh, Nalk Tara Singh; L. Nk. Bakhtaur Singh, Gnr. Chajja Singh, Gnr. Amar Singh, L. Nk. Khuda Baksh, Nalk Tara Singh.

Destroyer Flotilla:—A. B. Whiskered; Lt. Com. Brewer, Com. Wyley; Lt. Sanderson, Lt. Com. Newsome, Lt. Com. Sinclair Ford; Lt. Clark, Lt. Com. Goodwin, Lt. Battersly, A. B. Bratt, A. B. Belson.

WHY PERRY LOST

VOLLEYING GOES TO PIECES

CRAWFORD BETTER PLAYER

After F. J. Perry's revival, as shown in his rapid successes over G. de Stefani and V. B. McGrath, it is a little disappointing that he proved unable to repeat his last year's victory over J. H. Crawford in the final of the Australian Tennis Championship last month, writes a Sunday Observer correspondent. But the Australian has always been a hard man to beat, on his own courts particularly; and it is only an all-court player of the very top class who can hope to put him down.

It appears that Perry took the court without that weapon which has been one of the most powerful factors in his past successes—his volleying. He had won his two previous matches by sheer power and speed of driving, but that was not enough against Crawford. The Australian must be hustled if he is to be beaten, and there is no harder man to hustle. Give him time to make his own driving coups, and he will win; for his anticipation is so fine that he can deal with anything at the back of the court, however fast it comes.

UNABLE TO VOLLEY

Lack of practice in volleying proved fatal to Perry. Once Crawford had settled down, after losing the first set, he was always just, although only just, the stronger player. Driven as hard as Perry's service at his best, and a better length (except for a short time at the start of the third set) were enough to give him each of the other three sets at 6-4. In spite of a too long delayed effort on Perry's part to bring his volleying powers into play.

So the championship passed back again, and into worthy hands. Between them the two contestants have won eight out of the last nine "official" championships, and each has won four. In any world ranking they must occupy the two top places; and at the moment, to bracket them there would be only fair.

If Perry failed, Miss Round did not. She became the first English girl to win the Australian championship. It was, perhaps, a pity that Miss Hartigan, the best Australian player, was unable owing to ill-health to defend the title she won last year; but, in any case, Miss Round would not have had much to fear from her. Miss Nancy Lyle, another of our touring team, was Miss Round's opponent in the final; and, finding Miss Round badly off her service, Miss Lyle won the first set quite easily. Miss Round, however, is always a slow starter; when she had once got all her argument in thorough working order after changing her racket, her faster and better-directed driving proved too much for Miss Lyle, who could only get four more games in the match.

Reflections On The Soccer Interport

SPORTSMANSHIP A BIG FEATURE

fit in with general prophecies. Yet the real surprise came after the match when it was learnt that invaluable instructions had been issued by the Shanghai F.A. before the players sailed, as to the combination to be played in the Interport. It is no duty or wish of mine to criticise the Shanghai Football Association, but when this position is fully realised, it is easy to sympathise with Mr. Grimshaw and Mr. Watson. Lacking any power of attorney, and with their hands completely tied, they were instructed to bring back a winning Interport team. No wonder I was told after the game "We had to rely on our inside forwards. They failed, and we had to lose."

MIGHT HAVE DONE BETTER

ALTHOUGH it is dangerous to be dogmatic as a result of one match, I honestly believe Shanghai's best possible combination was that which figured against the United Services. I am admittedly none too well balanced, but I believe I would have been of far more value at centre-half, and Marcell's vast experience might have been of tremendous assistance to the Shanghai defence. Marcell played fairly well on the left wing, but not so good as Greenberg against the Chinese and Services. I am not going to say that denying the managers freedom of decision lost the Shanghai F.A. the Zengzi Cup, but I do sincerely believe that if Mr. Grimshaw and his colleagues had been allowed to field their team, Shanghai would have come out much better.

CONGRATULATIONS

WHEN looking at the Colony's share in the Interport series, I am going to refrain from comment on the players, and confine myself to offering hearty congratulations to the Association on the excellent arrangements. It is certain that no other Interport has been carried out more smoothly and more satisfactorily. Captain Hague and his committee colleagues, as well as Major Manners and Mr. G. T. May were unceasing in the efforts, both for the welfare of the visitors, and the comfort of the public on Monday last. The same tribute is applicable to the South China Athletic Association officials for the manner in which they arranged the Chinese game, and the Naval and Military authorities for the management of the Services encounter. Attendance records were smashed on Monday yet there was never any hitch in the smooth and efficient management of the crowds. As for the selection committee, they can smile in kindly tolerance of the criticism directed against them before the game. They produced a winning team, and not only that, a team which proved itself to be as good as any the Colony could turn out.

BASKETBALL AS A PAYING SPORT

People Turned Away

Lexington, Ky. Basketball is a paying sport at the University of Kentucky. They go in for the hardwood game in a big way in the Blue Grass state, often turning away customers when the Wildcats perform in the Alumni gymnasium, which seats close to 5,000 persons. Kentucky always has a good basketball team. The fans are rewarded annually with good shows. That's the reason for the success of the sport.

The Wildcats established a great record last season, winning 24 consecutive games before losing in a post-season contest during the annual Southeastern Conference tournament at Atlanta.

During the regular playing season, the Kentuckians have not lost a battle to a member of the South-Eastern since the conference was organized three years ago.

Adolph Rupp, the genial Wildcat coach, has been the pilot since the autumn of 1929 and since then Kentucky teams have won 69 games and lost only nine. Five of the games lost were dropped by the margin of one point.

Since Rupp took charge, the Wildcats have produced 11 out of a total of 20 all-conference players.

Rupp is a native of Kansas and starred as a guard on the University of Kansas team, learning his basketball under Phog Allen.

NAVAL DISARMAMENT

LONDON CONVERSATION NOT UTTER FAILURE

At least, he declared, Japan's viewpoints have been made known to Great Britain and the United States.

Rear-Admiral Yamamoto will leave for Tokyo to-morrow.—Reuter.

HONGKONG SCOUTS

LORD BADEN POWELL'S REFERENCE

A letter from the Chief Scout, who visited the world Jamboree near Melbourne, has been addressed to Mr. R. Dormer, the District Scoutmaster of Kowloon, who led the Hongkong contingent. It is dated from Camp Frankston, January 9, and runs as follows:

My dear Dormer,—I must send you just a word of thanks for bringing those excellent examples of Hong Kong Scouts to the Jamboree. It must have been a very long journey for you all, but I hope you found it worth while. At any rate your presence here has been much appreciated and I hope that your homeward voyage will be a happy and instructive one. Their experiences in Australia must have been good for your scouts: at any rate they looked as though they enjoyed them, and no doubt they will have gained a better realisation of the strength of our brotherhood and of the breadth of our Empire.

With very best wishes.

Yours sincerely,

(Sgd.) BADEN POWELL.

POLICE DEFIED

DARING BURGLARS IN HAMPSSTEAD

London, Feb. 8.

"Burglars' Paradise" is the name applied to the Hampstead and East Finchley districts, the abode mainly of rich business men, where malefactors have been defying the might of the metropolitan police for four consecutive nights.

Burglaries have occurred in the houses of wealthy men over an area of about two square miles and the total haul has been estimated at £15,000.

The latest victim is D.G.A. Lowe, the Cambridge and Olympic runner, whose losses of £1,000 include many trophies and gold medals won in Olympic contests.

Bishop's Avenue, where David Lazarus who was robbed of jewels worth £10,000 on February 4, lives, is known as Burglars' Avenue. Every house in this street, with the exception of two, has been burgled during the past two years. One has been broken into five times.

On Monday next in the House of Commons, Mr. Cadogan will ask the Home Secretary to ensure that the police take proper precautions.

Scotland Yard has poured policemen and detectives into the fatal district; residents have kept lights burning all night and large dogs in the grounds.

The burglars continue to laugh at the locksmiths, watchdogs, and police patrols.—Reuter.

HEROIN FACTORY EXPLOSION

SIXTH DISASTER IN THREE MONTHS

Shanghai, Feb. 8.

Shaking the environs for at least a quarter of a mile, the sixth big "Red Pill" factory in the International Settlement to be destroyed within the last three months, was blown to smithereens in an explosion this morning.

The factory was situated on the outskirts of the central business district. A small fire was quickly put out, but workers are still digging after five hours through masses of debris. So far, they have recovered seven bodies, considerable quantities of sulphuric acid and other drugs used for the manufacture of heroin, etc.

It is estimated that 37 were killed and many others injured in the explosion. Seventeen were rescued.

The confusion resulting from fire engines, crowds, ambulances and salvage gangs caused a traffic hold up for several hours.—Reuter.

'ASPRO'
WILL PROTECT YOU

GERMS are no respecters of persons. Wherever you travel you cannot tell the moment you are likely to catch a cold—or even the 'Flu'. The proved protection is 'ASPRO'. At the slightest sign of sneezing—sore throat—feverishness, etc., take 'ASPRO' according to the directions in the packet. Quick relief is assured, because 'ASPRO' expels the body poisons through the pores of the skin, and, therefore, restores one to normal health by eliminating such poisons and not suppressing them. Furthermore, 'ASPRO' is safe, sure and certain—it neither harms the heart nor stomach, and it conforms to the standard of purity laid down by the British Pharmacopoeia—the guiding authority of the medical profession.

Dear Sirs,
I thank 'ASPRO' Tablets for warding off influenza from my little boy, aged nine, as well as myself, when my wife, who was then an unbeliever in them, refused to take them, and finished up in hospital with double pneumonia, while we were getting colds, but stopped them with 'ASPRO' and nothing else.
My wife is a staunch advocate for their use now, and takes 'ASPRO' at the first sign of a cold. Wishing 'ASPRO' and their inventor all the good luck they deserve—I am,
Yours faithfully,

6 Hammer Street,

Dear Sirs,
Thank you for your kind interest in directing me to the certain way to effect a cure to the nasty COLD with which I had been battling for three weeks, during which time I had tried so many other infallible remedies.
On Thursday last I carried out your advice to the letter, and I could hardly believe the fact that on Saturday morning I woke up with no cold left, nor did I cough through the night as I had been in the habit of doing. Although I have used 'ASPRO' with excellent results for years in relieving HEADACHES, I can say positively and with very much appreciation, that your assurance that 'ASPRO' would break up a Cold or the 'Flu' in 24 hours if the directions were properly observed, has been conclusively proven.

SERIAL STORY—

Lovable

MARY RAYMOND

CHAPTER XXXVI

Mrs. Wainwright turned about and faced her niece. "Peter had time enough to get a divorce," she said. "It's three months since his wife left him. I saw him on the street yesterday and he looked like a ghost."

"He doesn't look well," Valeria conceded. "I hear he's thinking of selling the house he bought."

"Where in the world did you hear that?"

"I was driving with Mrs. Preston and she told me the Judson Longworths had made him a flattering offer. It seems they heard Conno and Paula were getting a divorce, and so they called back an offer which was referred to Peter. Mrs. Preston and Judson's mother are friends and the story came pretty straight."

"Oh, Peter mustn't let that darling place go!" Valeria's voice was sharp with anxiety. Mrs. Wainwright thought Valeria sounded more like herself than she had for a long time.

"I imagine Peter has just about given up hope that his wife will come back," Mrs. Wainwright said. "I should think you'd be pleased."

Valeria was not pleased. That house was needed in a scheme she had in mind. She was in Peter's office an hour later.

"Valeria, I hear you're thinking of selling your house. I haven't decided, but there doesn't seem much in holding on to it. It's too lovely. It would be terrible to let it go and then have Ann come back—she will some day."

"You think she will?" His voice was desperately eager.

"I'm sure of it. Some day she will see how foolish she has been and she'll call you, or you'll run into her on the street and everything will be fine."

"I wish I could believe that," His voice was husky with emotion. "You need more faith, Peter."

Valeria said in a low, soft voice. "I think all of us do. We rush about so much from one thing to another, thinking about things that really really vital. We forget the things that are essential—like faith and hope."

He stared at her for a long moment, as though seeing her for the first time.

"If you wanted to show your faith, you'd go ahead and furnish the house completely."

"Val, you don't mean it!" Peter stammered.

"I do mean it," she interrupted. "The house is a symbol of some thing of belief, faith. If you give it up, I have a feeling Ann may not come back. If you go ahead with your plans, I believe she will. It seems silly, but I feel that way."

"I've tried to believe she will come back. I've felt maybe my thoughts would reach her, somehow—that she would realize how much I—"

He broke off again, embarrassed. "It's like radio," Valeria said. "Sometimes the voice will be made you sending. Ann receiving."

Peter, please do the house for her! Get that wonderful new decorator, Allan Vincent. He's the best in town. He's been here only a few months and he's young, but he's done some of the most beautiful homes around here—the Speeds, the Douglas Maxwells, the David Wilsons. I could name a dozen."

"Never heard of him."

"That's because he's so new. They call him an artist-decorator. He has some queer idea of painting pictures of his plans and seeing them on canvas before he begins to work."

"I wouldn't want a sensational house," Peter said. "Ann wouldn't like it."

"He'll carry out your ideas," Valeria said eagerly. She was thinking, "He'll carry out mine."

"You'll see him and talk it over anyway?"

"I'll think it over."

"Please."

"I suppose I could sell the house furnished as well as unfurnished."

"That's a negative thought. You must believe she's coming back."

"I've had the town combed by detectives," Peter said uncertainly. "It's a big town. You'll find her yet."

She was standing now. Peter rose and came over, gripping her hands hard. "Valeria, you're a darn good sport. I've never before realized—"

She laughed cheerfully. "It takes some hard knocks to shake some sense in one's head sometimes. One of the lessons I've learned is that I value your friendship. We've always been good friends—perhaps it was never anything more than that—and I don't want to lose you."

"You're all kinds of a brick. I've been hearing and reading about the things you are doing. I'm proud of you."

"I've really been fun—given me happiness to help out. Particularly the work with the children."

"You've helped me, too," Peter said.

"I'd love to go out sometimes with you and see what this decorator does with the place. May I?"

"I haven't volunteered your services? This decorator will be wanting a woman's ideas."

Peter was still holding her hands. Now he released them. "You're the first one to give me a hope—about Ann. Strange, isn't it?"

"I'm glad," said Valeria. She drove home in a glow of happiness. How transparent men were, how pliable and ready to be moulded into any shape under a woman's clever handling.

Falling into Peter's mood was the way. Pretending to believe Ann would return to him, making him feel comforted and confident. Naturally, he would come back for more of the same medicine. She had given him a plausible reason for her desire to be with him. Imagine doing a house for Ann. She laughed aloud suddenly. For Ann!

It would be a terrible day for her if Ann returned. But then Ann wouldn't. The girl had been silly pride. She would stay away until it was too late, until Peter had begun divorce proceedings. The chances were that she wouldn't appear on the scene at all. Not until it was all over and Valeria was married to Peter—safely established in a beautiful home, furnished according to her own ideas. Because, of course, she could manage this decorator with subtle suggestions, conveying the impression that she was the one to be pleased.

This had been a splendid day's effort. One of the best in her life. Peter had noticed her "good work."

She had worked herself to death, denied herself all fun. It had been boring being a little Pollyanna, playing Lady Bountiful. It really wasn't her role. But it had been a great idea to adopt it. She myself.

There would be compensations. She would be driving with Peter through the fragrant countryside to the home. They would dine at little, out-of-the-way places. Day by day, with her sympathy and understanding, she would be becoming more essential to Peter.

Milliecent said, when Peter broke the news to her, "It's the silliest thing I have ever heard of—furnishing the house for Ann when she may never come back to you."

Peter's face whitened. "Don't."

"Well, it's true. And if she does, what then? Women like to select their own things. It's part of the fun of getting into your own place. I'm sure I wouldn't want another woman selecting the patterns for my china and silver. It would be like living in a house a first wife had furnished."

"Valeria won't have a thing to do with the decorating and furnishing, that's what you object to. I saw the decorator this afternoon and he wouldn't take the job unless he can do it his own way."

"Well, that's something to be thankful for," Milliecent said. "I hope he does have a mind of his own. If he doesn't the place will be terrible. I can't imagine Ann living in a house Valeria had furnished."

"She won't furnish it," Peter insisted.

Milliecent smiled, but wisely decided to say nothing more. She was treading thin ice, she knew, and was smart enough to know when to stop.

The next moment she forgot her resolution because Peter said, "You haven't noticed how changed Valeria is? Have you?"

"No, I haven't. I've seen some gestures. Peter, be careful. Don't forget the leopard's spots."

"You never have seen any good in Valeria."

Milliecent stared. So Peter was taking up arms in defence of Valeria. This was something new!

STATE CAPITALISM

NOT FOR MANCHUKUO SAYS JAPAN

Tokyo, Feb. 8. During the Budget Committee debate, a Government spokesman declared that Manchukuo would not adopt State Capitalism, as feared in some quarters. The spokesman admitted that Manchukuo would control key industries for safeguarding national defence, but intimated that a Manchukuo-Japanese Economic Conference would be convoked shortly for the regulation of economic co-operation between the two countries.—Reuter.

TUNG WAH HOSPITAL

FEWER DIRECTORS IN FUTURE

The Gazette contains the draft of an Ordinance to amend the Tung Wah Hospital Ordinance, 1930. Section 3 makes various amendments in section 8 of the principal Ordinance which result from difficulties which have arisen in securing the election of a sufficient number of Directors of the Tung Wah Hospital for the year 1935.

Sub-sections (1) and (2) of section 8 provided that the number of Directors should be not less than eighteen, and not more than thirty of whom at least six should be residents of Kowloon or New Kowloon. This amending Ordinance reduces these numbers to ten, twenty and three respectively.

Sub-section (4) of section 8 terminated the period of office of the Directors for any one year at the end of that year, with a proviso to the effect that if the election of the Directors for the following year should not have been completed in time their predecessors should continue in office for 1934 have consented to continue in office under the proviso; but only for a short time, and as it may take some time to secure even the reduced number of Directors now contemplated, this amending Ordinance adds a further proviso giving His Excellency the Governor power to appoint a sufficient number of temporary Directors.
